SUMMARY

UNAKHO gbv Foundation is a non-profit organization the main objective of this facility is to provide a safe and secure multi use youth development centre for Mount Frere youth that contributes to better equipping them for life, leadership and positive social contribution. The Centre is a movement created to help victims of GBV and rape cases which are increasing on a daily basis in South Africa. We believe most people are not sure what to do, who to talk to when, where to report when they are raped and abused as it first starts with emotional abuse until it gets physical and some women think it's love and some find it hard to leave their partners/ husbands as they also rely and depend on them financially.

That's where we come in as we are prepared to open our doors and offer them support and counselling and for our government to offer victims a shelter where they can stay and be safe away from their abusers. We will have professional counsellors and mentors specifically for such. Also we will have a music suite that will have music equipment where young and talented people will show off their talents and we will make a video of them performing and post it in our social media platforms for them to be recognized by record labels it is not easy for young people to move to big cities especially young people from the eastern cape (in the deep villages) even if they do some end up giving up on their dreams because of how they are mistreated by their family members and friends we hope this youth centre becomes a success and change many lives of the youth.

We also offer:

- Support for drug addictions and alcoholics
- GBV cases
- Health relationship advice
- Mental health support
- Employment workshops including curriculum vitae writing
- Sexual health services
- Family support

ORGANISATION

The setting

What does an average day look like in the Centre?

- Media suite
- Small theater to show short films, educational videos, presentations etc.
- Dedicated evenings available (by appointment) for usage of facility
- Bands setup to practice without fear of noise complaints
- Multi-use space to run team-work and leadership games

- Various groups coming in from schools, youth groups, individuals etc. to do either organised activities in a space that has been booked out to them, or in time that has been set aside for activities in those spaces (music space, art space,, IT area, youth cafe, homework, theatre, careers, health etc.)
- There would be various meetings being facilitated by organizations around involved with the youth of Mount Frere e.g.:Youth Council, Youth Leaders, Peer Supporters, Health providers, educators with discussion groups around suicide, self harm, mental health, well being music, sport, education.

What does an average week look like at Unakho ?

- Users are familiar with the process for the centre, they are now regularly booking themselves into the centre to use the facilities, ensuring that they book well in advance of use.
- The manager and staff are able to plan their days in advance and know what their likely demands for service will be based on experience and the level of bookings.
- The centre will be a popular venue for a large number of youth 'providers and their young people as the word will go around the youth community and providers about how much better the centre will be than most of the facilities they have been using. The centre will be viable to be booked for both day and evening use.
- We will allow bookings from providers who will have their own programmes for youth, the staff at the centre will offer some developmental activities and programmes for some groups of young people.
- Youth counselling and crisis rooms will be in regular use
- Careers advisors providing advice and information on careers/the workforce and educational institutions and student loans.
- Local MP and council staff regularly visiting and encouraging youth participation and voice in local and national political issues
- Peer-to-peer mentoring
- Adult-youth mentoring
- Groups of youths and leaders going to other centres to inspire/tutor/instruct
- Different organisations may come in on different days and be available on drop in basis (Young people seem to prefer this) but also have some appointment times. These services could also link in with ones provided through the joint colleges.
- Activities on a weekly basis, open on weekends and at times that are relevant to youth -available during school hours for groups, and after school for youth activities.
- Maybe a weekly roster of user groups, meeting, training, youth engaging within the community and opportunities. Staffing onsite and offsite

Who is using the Centre?

- Groups for organized events (youth groups, sports groups, cultural groups)
- Corporates for team building (income)
- The centre is a focus for assessing the needs of youth in areas of health, employment, personal development, education and the development of leadership and other skills, and staff are versed in referring individuals to appropriate services, some of which are closely linked to the centre
- Tutors/experts/counselors/instructors- sports/trades/mental health

Services and Activities

These can be split into five main categories: Youth Work, Sports and Outdoor Activities, Premises Rental, Fundraising and Volunteer Opportunities. In reality there is an overlap between all of these areas. More details are shown below.

Youth Work

Youth centre activities include the use of our premises for socializing and informal sports such as pool, darts and sports hall use as well as arts and craft. We use this side of our work to identify specific needs and interests of young people and design a youth work curriculum accordingly. We engage external organizations to deliver services that we are not able to deliver internally and this might include football coaching, stay safe workshops, drugs and alcohol advisory services, music and digital technology workshops to name a few. We offer a regular weekly programme as well as school holiday programmes and one off trips and activities. Our youth clubs operate on a drop-in basis as well as being supported by detached youth work and partnership work with local organizations to ensure a wide range of young people benefit from the facilities and activities on offer.

Sports and Outdoor Activities

This range of activities is used as a key part of our youth work curriculum as well as a means of generating our own income. We have a number of regular activity groups for young people including a table tennis club and a fortnightly football programme. We also offer after school club programmes to local schools, curriculum focused outdoor activity programmes and a whole range of other outdoor and adventurous activities to customers for which we charge a fee.

We use external providers to support those young people who wish to pursue higher levels of award or professional qualifications if needed. All income generated through the sale of activities is fed directly back into the youth work related activities of the project.

Premises Rental Profile

We also use our premises for rentals, customers ranging from private family party bookings to businesses booking out the entire premises for conferences, to local youth focused groups using our premises for their own beneficiary work. The premises will be available for rental 7 days a week and this provides an essential means of introducing new people to the work that we do as well as generating earned income. All income generated through the rental of the premises is fed directly back into the youth work related activities of the project and to also buy uniform and shoes for students that are coming from less privileged families.

Partnership Working

The project works with a wide range of organizations to achieve its aims and objectives. These include local secondary and primary schools, other youth focused organisations including the uniformed services, national governing bodies, local police, volunteer focused organisations, parents, community groups, county sports partnerships, and local activity providers. We deliver contracted youth and sports related projects throughout the year as well as teaming up with local organisations to maximize the opportunities and impact for young people.

THE YOUTH OF MOUNT FRERE

There is a need for this centre to be built in my community many young people gave up on life because of the high rate of unemployment in South Africa the centre is a place where they can be revived and focus on what they want to achieve in life there's still a high rate of teenage pregnancy young people are not educated enough in these rural areas and many are influenced by their peers. It is sad to watch young girls and boys demolish their future in unnecessary things such as drugs and alcohol abuse I believe they have so much potential by fixing young people and changing their mindset will definitely make the villages a better place for growth and for them to be conscious on what they involve themselves in their daily lives.
